Wang displays a modest demeanor, but it's overshadowed by a lofty resume, inclusive of an impressive education and meaningful experience serving in multiple executive positions in the international business, technology, and domain name sectors.

Wang received his bachelor's degree in International Business at the Beijing University of Chemical Technology, graduating with first class honors, in the top 10 percentile. Wang's time at BUCT was distinguished with many awards for academic performance and student leadership. During his undergraduate studies, Wang was selected as an exchange student to join an international business program at Lappeenranta University of Technology in Finland. After graduation, Wang travelled to Europe and earned a postgraduate MSc management degree from the prestigious Imperial College, London.
